Mr. William E. Colby, Director
Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, D. C. 20505

Dear Mr. Colby:

I was a participant in a one day "open house" for faculty from predominately Black schools held at your agency in early spring of this year. At the seminar, we were informed of the possibility to have personnel from the agency come to our campuses and speak to classes.

In lieu of that possibility, I am requesting the services, for one day, of a person knowledgeable in the areas of Russian and/or Chinese politics and would also be willing to speak on the agency role in international politics.

The person will be expected to speak to at least two classes. One class in international politics and the other in comparative politics. Any Friday between the 18th of October and the 15th of November would be suitable for the visit.

We are hoping you will find it possible to meet this request and that it will become the first in a long line of mutually satisfying endeavors.

Sincerely,

Carolyn Sue Williams
